Silk Lantern is a celebration of Asia's most storied kitchens where borders blur, flavours deepen, and recipes are passed from hand to heart.

From the highlands of Tibet to the spice trails of Sri Lanka, every dish at Silk Lantern reflects the soul of a region, reimagined for today. You'll taste the wokfired heat of Sichuan, the herbal clarity of Thai kitchens, the smoky depth of Malaysian grills, and the slow-cooked comfort of Indian curries all in one shared experience.

This is not a fusion. It is reawakening of gastronomic traditions shaped by fire, fearless flavours, timeless skills and family values.
